Lectures.
Mrs. Mabel L. Conklin of Brooklyn, N. Y., National Lecturer and Organizer of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and White Cross Society for men, will give a series of lectures in Norway and South Paris, June 2, 3 and 4.
Mrs. Conklin is a woman of extraordinary talent, has studied in Europe, and has had a broad experience as a lecturer. She is a delightfully interesting speaker and though she comes under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., 'tis only by the generous co-operation of the churches that we are given this opportunity to hear her. It is hoped that one and all will make a great effort to come to these lectures. Do not stay at home, and then when it is too late, and you hear your friends singing her praises, be sorry that you did not hear her. She will preach at a mass meeting in the Baptist church at South Paris at 3 p. m. Sunday, June 3d, and at a mass meeting in the Congregational church, Norway, at 7:30 Sunday evening.
Monday, June 4, at 4:30 p. m., she will give a talk to boys over ten years of age in Concert Hall, Norway. Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. U., there will be an address to girls over fourteen years of age at the Universalist church, Norway. All women are admitted to this service.

These lectures are free, but collections will be taken at the different meetings to help pay expenses.

There was a good attendance at the Baptist church, Sunday afternoon, on the occasion of the memorial sermon by the pastor, Rev. H. H. Bishop. About 40 members of the Grand Army Post were present, and a similar number of the Woman's Relief Corps. Good singing was by a chorus of sixteen voices under direction of Mrs. Clarence L. DeCoster. Mr. Bishop's theme was Peace, and the manner in which he handled it was pleasing to his auditors. He believes that permanent peace is never reached over any question till it is settled, and that it is never settled until settled right.
The old-fashioned district school that occurred at Concert Hall, Friday evening, was a decided success. The hall was crowded to the very doors. The supper too was excellent and well patronized. It must have been very gratifying to the W. C. T. U. and also left them a neat little sum for their charity work. The teacher, Annie P. Gayton, with her long, wavy curls and her very dark, and every one sees the rapid growth of the Radcliffe $2.50 shoe and are assured there is work for all and many more to come. The E. F. Spinney & Co. business will continue to be steadily and we learn they can employ more girls in their stitching room.

THE PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION. The Woodchucks.—The Shipping and Live Stock and Lumber Markets of Buffalo.—Statuary in "The Rainbow City".—View from the Tower.—Some of the Exhibits.—All the Government Displays in Which Each One Has an Interest.—Fisheries, etc.—Manufactures and Agriculture.—Going to a Ball Game.

I traveled seven hundred and fifty miles, and at last found a place where the woodchuck is prized. The city of Buffalo has a public zoo in Delaware park, and perhaps the greatest curiosity of the collection is the half dozen woodchucks. "The Virginian" says: "Why those are nothing but groundhogs." The Nebraska expresses a desire to swap his prairie dogs for woodchucks. But the children of the city folks and the Westerners linger about the woodchuck pen.

Being the eastern terminal of the steamboat lines that traverse the waters of the great lake, Buffalo affords splendid opportunities to see the shipping on those "unsalted seas." More vessels clear from the port of Buffalo between ice and ice than from Boston in a whole year. They have developed one new type of vessel on these lakes, the whaler (or round-topped) steamboat. The wharves are along the shore from the railroad docks at South Buffalo to the lumber yards of Tonawanda, a dozen miles below, and a good day can be put in there.

One result of the shipping is the large stockyards at East Buffalo, claimed, and probably with truth, to be the largest east of Chicago. Live stock by the thousands may be seen in them, as well as the methods of handling and traffic.

The Diary of a Day.

The crows are digging in the cornfield. The chattering grows on the sky. The moon is hiding behind the hilltop. And Robin Redbreast chatters nigh. The green leaves shine in dewy splendor, and rustle in the morning breeze light. And bees hum round the roses tender. While he away the shades of night. The birds with their mates are cooing. The orchard trees are rife with song. Old Sol's bright splendor 'gins to ruin the rosy tints of the sunset glow. The bobolink with love is fawning a round his mate upon a calling. Near the farm house a lamb. His hired man: "Get up that, Jim!" "This noon tide and the black clouds hover, threatening showers,—wind is east; all living creatures seek for cover."—Wonderful, man and roosting beast; The farmer's mate corrals the chickens With swinging apron, hat or club. And Jimmie goes to the "saw and shingle." The sprouting "spuds" to assort and rub. In roadside gutter ruddy water. Rustling leaves, rippling down the hill. The eaves run streams, the raindrops spatter. In lively cadence on the sill. The old man looks at the "saw and shingle." Crows little for the pouring rain;—Wonderful, man and roosting beast; Expresses hopes: "I won't never shower again!"

The evening and a glorious sunset With crimson beauty crowns the west. The farmer and poor, tired Jimmie. The old man looks at the "saw and shingle." Melodious cowbells tinkle homeward. The milkmaid with her pail in hand. Awaits her cow in the pasture land. While gnaws her socks the honest lamb. "This midnight, and the moon is shining. The old man looks at the "saw and shingle." And Nellie in Jim's lap reclining. In oblivion's peace rest, Oh, ye dark hours of morning. On the old man's chin shall tint the sky; Sleep, until men sweep to meet the dawning. Is even so to my sweet maid CHARLES DAVIS. South Paris, Me., May 6th, 1901.

CAN YOU DO THIS?

You ought to be able to if you are on the sunny side of forty. If you can't, then something is wrong with you. What is it? Does it hurt you across the back, or are your legs weak? It is easy to be well if you will only give attention to the first warnings of Nature. She is very kind about it, and it is your own fault if you don't heed her and keep your troubles in their infancy before they become chronic. A bottle of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy bought for $1.00 and taken now will perhaps be the means of preventing a long, painful KIDNEY TROUBLE or disease of the blood, with attendant Eczema, Bursitis, Caruncles and Rheumatism. It is all so easy that it is a surprise that people of both sexes will allow themselves to get run down and debilitated before taking our Remedy.

A dollar for a bottle when you feel the first symptoms will save you thousands of dollars in money and suffering later on.

If you want to know all about what the symptoms are and just how they ought to be treated, as well as seeing many testimonials from well-known people who have followed our advice, just drop us a postal card, and we will send you free our Booklet A. It is one of the finest medical books on the market and well worth careful perusal.

Maps in the Registry of Deeds.

Heretofore, when anybody had a map or plan to file in the registry of deeds, he drew it on such paper and of such size as he saw fit. The result is an accumulation of miscellaneous papers that can only be kept in rolls. The officers of the Rumford Falls Power Co. have asked for a system on this matter, and, as their company is the principal one having such records here, a plan was made accordingly. At the last meeting of the county commissioners, Register Bean laid the matter before them and they adopted the following order:

After this date, every drawing, map or plan offered for recording in the County Registry shall be ready for binding into a Flat Record, and shall be of the following standard material and size before acceptance by the Register of Deeds, viz.: The drawing, map or plan shall be made with India ink, on Whatman's equal quality drawing paper, size 22 by 34 inches, and called Atlas or Columbian size, and drawn upon only one side of the sheet. Across one end of the sheet, which shall be the left hand edge or the top of the drawing, map or plan, there shall be for binding a clear margin 2 inches wide, and on the other three edges a margin 1 1/2 inches wide.

A stub book for binding has been ordered. Register Bean will keep on hand a quantity of the paper and sell it at cost. Those who now have plans on record will prepare new copies in accordance with the requirements.

Celebrated Their Tenth Anniversary.

A very pleasant gathering took place, Saturday evening, May 18th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Otis, 753 Summer street, Manchester, N. H., the occasion being the celebration of the tenth anniversary of their marriage. Their many friends and neighbors, learning of the anniversary, dropped in upon them unawares, and so helped them to celebrate in a more social manner. It was a complete surprise to both Mr. and Mrs. Otis. The evening was spent in social intercourse, playing games and having a general good time. After the evening had well advanced, J. D. Knight of Dover, an uncle of the hostess, called the merry assemblage to order and in behalf of those present presented Mr. and Mrs. Otis with a beautiful china closet. Both Mr. and Mrs. Otis responded to the presentation with a few remarks. Maud Webster favored the company with two recitations which merited much applause. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served, after which the party was brought to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis spent the first six years of their married life in Norway and are remembered by many.

Sand Pond Dam Went Out.

Thursday afternoon, May 22, Perry's dam at the outlet of Sand Pond in Norway gave way, letting some ten feet of water out. As the pond is about 250 acres in area, the country below was flooded. The outlet stream is variously known as Sand pond brook, Lombard brook and Greeley brook, and flows southerly, touching Oxford, and then, through Oxford to Thompson pond, and was spanned by eight bridges.

The first bridge below was on the road from Norway Lake to the big Crooked river bridge, and it went out at once. Below there were a bridge on the Harrison stage road and another a short distance below on a cross road. Abutments of both were swept away.

That night, the Harrison stage stayed at E. G. Gammon's. In the morning, the bridge was repaired sufficiently so that the journey was completed.

Below there, the meadows spread out so that damage was less.

Wreckage from the dam, Perry's little sawmill, bridges, fences, etc., was strewn along the brook from Sand pond to Thompson pond.

A Sprained Ankle Quickly Cured.

"At one time I suffered from a severe sprain of the ankle," says Geo. E. Cary, editor of the Guide, Washington, Va.

Summer Young Man.

A Response to a Toast.

"Having been brought up in the strictest Pauline faith, it would be most unbecoming for me, from my standpoint to question the wisdom of any man. If I were one of those strong-minded females, which you call the 'new woman,' I might ask why the 'summer young man' was not given to some younger person, to some one who has enjoyed more recent opportunities for critical study and close observation of this most interesting species of the genus homo."

"For, judging from my venerable appearance, you could hardly expect me to devote much of my time and attention to the young man. But as I am not a stiv woman, but on all his meek and clinging sort, I rise to the occasion, at the bidding of the toastmaster and give to you such long distance observations, as a residence of many years at this famous watering place has afforded me."

"As you are all to the 'manner born,' there is no need to describe him."

"The ever-recurring seasons bring him periodically. His gorgeous necktie, his shirt waists, his flannel legs, his caps, his curls, his cane, his cigarette, his budding mustache, his swagger and more than all, his profound admiration for himself must be as familiar to you all as to me. The lilies that toll not, nor Solomon all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Whether we call him summer young man, dude, or unlicked cub, what does it matter? A rose by any other name, you know. He has become as much a feature of the summer as the swallows and the beach roses."

"We look upon him much as we do the twinkling stars in the blue heavens above or the flashing lights off shore, a part of the summer landscape."

"In regard to his place in the world, however, perhaps we do not think seriously enough. The stars, in spite of our comfortable belief that they were put in the sky simply to adorn it, are said by astronomers to have other and far more important uses in the great scheme of creation; and the light houses, contrary to the opinion of the summer girl, who thought a summer seaside resort real thing, not to put upon more light houses, they look so pretty, don't they? Warn the mariners of the dangers that lurk along the rough and rocky coasts of New England. No doubt the summer young man has his little part to play in the great economy of nature."

"And the summer girl, what would she do without him? Even the society woman takes him in her train in large quantities in place of her usual admirers on the boarder, and it went out at once. Below there were a bridge on the Harrison stage road and another a short distance below on a cross road. Abutments of both were swept away."

That night, the Harrison stage stayed at E. G. Gammon's. In the morning, the bridge was repaired sufficiently so that the journey was completed.

Painted Dresses.

It has become quite a fad lately among artistic girls to paint their own dresses and by so doing they are able to have, for a moderate cost, beautifully decorated materials, which would cost a small fortune if they were bought ready painted.

One clever girl has designed and painted the entire front and trimming of a bodice on black mousseline de sole. The design is of scarlet popples and light, feathery grasses, with here and there a butterfly, having spangles for eyes and on the wings. The spangles are, of course, sewed on, and they add much to the brightness and good effect.

Other girls might well spend their leisure hours in painting of this kind, both for themselves and for their mothers.

No Dread of Death.

Testimony of the Dying that They Have No Fear.

If there is such a thing as being an authority on death, Thomas H. Andrews, surgeon to the Bureaus of Police and Fire, should rank high as an expert. He says the Philadelphia Press. In the course of thirty-seven years of active practice he has conducted over four thousand post mortem examinations and has seen at least half that number of human beings die.

He talked freely on the subject of death, yesterday. He has looked into the eyes of dying men and women and children of every kind and condition, and this is the summing up of it all:

"Death is as much of a mystery to me now as it was when I first saw a human being die.

"Nature is never so kind to man as when she is severing the ties that bind him to this earthly life. She removes all fear, ameliorates every harsh surrounding, softens every sound and smooths the narrow pathway to the grave with kindly hands. The easiest thing in life is to die."

"In your experience, Dr. Andrews," I asked, "have you ever found a case in which fear of death rose to the point where men fought and screamed at its approach?"

"Never. In severe sickness death comes in the guise of a welcome visitor. On the battlefield or as the result of accident or sudden shock when it comes to a man swiftly, who but a moment before was in perfect health and half an hour later will be dead, a fortitude which I cannot describe and have never been able to analyze sustains the victim."

"Do men and women of the higher grades of intelligence exhibit any different emotions as death approaches from those gifted with less mental power?" Does the professional man or the scientist betray any different feelings or emotions from those exhibited by the day laborer or the most ignorant of men?"

"No and yes," was the reply. "The scientist, the man or woman of keen intelligence and trained faculties, must have been conscious for an exhibition of faith in religion and its teachings, are slower to accept ministrations of clergymen and others. The man of low intelligence yields at the first approach and calls for religious consolation.

"The reason for this, I think, that the vast majority of professional men, outside of the clergy, and particularly doctors and scientists generally, are not inclined to believe or accept what they cannot demonstrate as a scientific fact. And yet, as a rule, these men and women willingly accept religious ministrations when death is only a matter of hours."

"I recall an instance during the war. One of the most distinguished men in the Confederacy was brought to me for treatment. I saw at once that his death was a matter of hours only. He was one of the most brilliant and charming men I ever met. I told him that he could not live and asked him if he desired to talk with a clergyman. He declined in a rather careless way that he did not feel disposed to change his views—that death, as he believed, ended all and there was no use of dragging religion in at the last moment. He then fell strong and clear headed. When I saw him in the afternoon he was weaker and referring to our earlier conversation told me that he had been raised in the Methodist faith and that its teachings had left an impression on his mind. He had left an impression on a Methodist clergyman which I did. When I saw him just before he died he told me what comfort the talk with the minister had given him and that he now would face death with a braver heart than he could have done before."

"I merely cite this instance," said Dr. Andrews, "to show that there is nothing which influences a man so much in later life, and even in the death hour, as the environment and teaching of his childhood. Jimmy J. Logan, the notorious burglar and criminal, told me here in my office that a night never went over his head that he did not kneel down and say his prayers."

"Has there ever been any demonstration, physical or otherwise, on the part of all the hundreds whom you have seen on the threshold of death which you could interpret as a positive indication of a future life?"

"Not one."

"Have you ever encountered instances in which dying persons have told you of visions which they have seen, of voices they have heard?"

"Yes. I recall particularly one instance. It was that of a man who had suddenly died, but revived for a little time before he finally passed away. He told me about the lights and sounds and chaos of magnificent things he had seen, 'beyond the river' as he put it. Of course, he really believed that he saw them, but it was the hallucination of a man whose mind was in a state of confusion and whose religious convictions were being dominated by some illusion of this kind prior to death. It cannot be accepted as convincing evidence of a future life."

Dr. Andrews, it may be remarked, is a churchman with strong religious views. He explained in connection with the above statement that he was speaking purely from a scientific standpoint. Men and women in extreme condition, cannot be regarded as furnishing reliable testimony of the evidence of their senses.

"I have found," continued Dr. Andrews, "that persons of clean life, of honorable, upright religious character, not only do not display an indifference to the approach of death, as those of grosser life do, but welcome it as a relief from care and toil. There is something about the approach of death that reconciles men to it. The senses are dulled, the perceptive faculties are blunted and the end comes quietly, painlessly, like a gentle sleep."

"In this condition, I mean on the approach of death, those who retain their faculties to any degree become more or less philosophers. That it is only a question of hours, and they accept the verdict without any demonstration or protest in a philosophical way. In all my experience I have never found a case in which a dying man or woman complained against the inevitable, attempted to fight its approach or even feared it."

"It is only in good health that we fear death. When we become ill, when we have sustained some injury of a very serious nature, the fear of death seems to disappear."

"The one great unsolved problem, before which science thus far has stood disarmed, is the secret and the mystery of the origin of life. Side by side with it I may say is the mystery of death. I have never seen, and I have never heard of any authentic evidence from the deathbed of any one, which could be accepted as scientific proof of the existence of a life beyond the grave."

"That is a matter of faith. It has been a matter of faith through all the ages, and I believe that it will be a matter of faith to the end of time. I have, as I said before, ascertained this, that the men and women of the purest lives and the strongest faith exhibit that fact conspicuously in their last hours, and in a manner that undoubtedly tends to rob death of even the semblance of terror."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It cures Catarrh of the bladder, prostate and seminal vesicles, and gives the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer $100 for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

DEAR EDITOR:—I have come to live with my Grandmother, this summer. Since I have been here, I have read the letters that the boys and girls write for the Advertiser, and like them very much.

I was born in Eustis, Florida, and am 12 years old. My home has been in Lynn, Mass., since I was a year old. I went to school in Lynn and studied geography, reading, writing, language, arithmetic, spelling, drawing and music. I went to Sunday school. My teacher's name was Miss Goodwin. I also belong to the Juniors. We had a meeting, every Sunday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

I have seen some sheep and a lot of little lambs. Wednesday, I picked my first mayflowers, never saw any growing in the fields before. They do not grow around Lynn.

I like to read very much, have some books of my own, and when I am at home I take books out of the public library.

My aunt, Laura E. Hill, is at home on her vacation. Will close with a conundrum:—What is the most ancient of trees? Your friend,
INES F. MOULTON.

A Very Remarkable Remedy.

"It is with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawelle, of Hartford, Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me, 'I really believe that medicine saved my life, the past summer, while at the shore,' and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever."

As circumference of head increased, mental ability increased. This conclusion is in accord with the general truth held by zoologists, that in animals the relative size of brain to body is an index of intelligence. It was also found that as age increases in children, brightness decreases in most studies. In this connection it may be mentioned that the relative size of head to body in children is much greater than in adults.—Everybody's Magazine.

A Worthy Successor.

"Something New Under the Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid remedies, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers, have eaten away the membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner, who for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which has at last reached the afflicted parts, but permanently cures CATARRH by removing the cause, stopping the discharge, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES THE GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and relieves wonderfully quick to the HEAD. FEVER or COUGH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION—"SNUFFLES" will cure you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if used according to the directions which are accompanying each package. Don't delay in getting your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE".

The Woods in May.

"Go forth under the open sky
And let to Nature's teachings."
Leave housecleaning and all the cares of housekeeping, "play," as the children do, that it is all done, and go out and walk over mother Nature's carpet of soft green mosses and pine needles. Inhale, long and deep, the sweet spring air. Look about for the "wild and woody things," that, under their warm white blanket, have been for so many months waiting to grow.

Last week, the last sprays of the arbutus could be found in shady nooks. Many of the clusters had lost some of their waxy blossoms, some were tinged with the decaying brown, but the spicy odor was there.

"April flowers," they might almost be called, for they generally are all in bloom before the arrival of "Merrie May." A few miles farther inland they are not to be found to any extent. Here let a protest be uttered against the ruthless tearing up of this beautiful plant. It has nearly died out in many places for this reason. A pair of old scissors should be used to cut the flower stalk from the trailing stem.

The dogtooth violet and bloodroot, which are the earliest flowers in some regions, are not often found in this locality. The arbutus is our first spring blossom.

The liver-leaf hepatica triloba, first specimen of the Crowfoot family, made patches of ground under the pine trees fairly blue with its dainty blossoms, making one fairly greedy to gather every one of them.

Club mosses with their vivid green foliage grow like little trees all about. It requires a goodly stretch of the imagination to think of the time when these were the immense trees that formed, when buried in the earth, many of our coal beds.

The tiny white violet, growing scarcely an inch from the ground, the first of its species, very nearly escaped observation.

We found the bellwort with its pale yellow bells, the "wild oats" of our childhood.

Trilliums are abundant, both the red, trillium erectum, and the pretty painted variety. Well we remember the joy of our childish hearts when we discovered these beauties and were told they were "Benjamins."

Another member of the Crowfoot family, the globe anemone, anemone nemorosa, with its one pale, nodding little flower, may be found along the margin of our woods. This little "spring flower," got this name because it was thought to open only when the wind blows.

We must not forget the children's joy, the gay little dandelion, making the fields and roadsides bright. Nor the tiny blue, houstonia, making white patches all over the fields.

Make a pilgrimage, each week, and see "the green things a-growing." Take the children along and teach them to observe the beauty of the common things of nature.

Give them some "Nature study" from Nature herself, which will far exceed all the lessons of the best textbooks. They will make many discoveries and learn much of botany without knowing it. Let them make their own collections. For the next month, beautiful things will bloom something new almost every day. Many wild specimens of the lily family will be found, so easily determined by their patterned leaves. Perhaps you will find some home lilies, too, for a time, but the entire change of thought will be beneficial and useful, and every-day duties will take on new meanings.

Burglars Wreck Andover Post-office.

Burglars entered the post-office at Andover, Tuesday night, blew the safe and escaped with about $800 in money and $700 in stamps.

The burglars gained entrance to the post-office building by forcing a window with tools stolen from Keith's blacksmith shop. In blowing the safe either nitro-glycerine or dynamite was used and the work was done in a very thorough manner. The safe was blown to pieces and the interior of the post-office building was almost completely wrecked.

Everything of value that the safe contained was taken, but the letters in the office were not touched. Although the robbers had made good their escape before anybody arrived on the scene, there is little doubt that they were two in number, as indicated by the tracks which were followed to Roxbury Notch, where they were followed by the post-office building in which the post-office is located is a small one-story structure, situated within 12 feet of the residence of postmaster Henry M. Thomas. In connection with the post-office Mr. Thomas conducts a fruit and confectionery business. The sound of the explosion, that occurred about 1:30 o'clock, was heard by residents of other sections of the town.

Mr. Thomas and his family were not awakened and knew nothing of the occurrence until aroused by the excited voices of their neighbors.

Frank P. Thomas and Fernando M. Thomas pursued them into the woods and located them at Roxbury. Fearing to make an attempt to arrest them, they assisted them to get into the woods and they sent word to Rumford Falls and deputy sheriffs H. L. Elliott and Fred A. Porter went to their assistance.

On the way a number of recruits were gathered and when they arrived in Roxbury the woods were surrounded. Then the line was drawn in gradually and when they reached the center of the woods the men were found. They resisted strongly and several shots were fired before they surrendered. Both the men were armed and one of them also had a razor.

The two men arrested were taken to Rumford Falls, where they gave their names as Robert McLean and John Jenkins and said their homes were in Detroit, Mich. A grip containing $800 worth of postage stamps and nearly $400 was taken from them. The contents was identified as the plunder taken from Andover post-office. They were to be arraigned in the Municipal Court on Wednesday morning.
